

With an undeniable passion for music and an insatiable love for bringing a crowd together, Honolulu-based Baumer has been packing out dancefloors across the globe.

His story has not been one of overnight success, but rather a tale of unfaltering passion and courageous determination to make one's dreams come true. Enchanted by the art of mixing records, Baumer has had his eye set on becoming a professional DJ since his teens. What began as a hobby 8 years ago has now turned into a career that has taken Baumer to places that he could have only ever dreamed of. His success, which can be attributed to his precise mixing abilities, ability to read a crowd, and intelligent track selection has seen him very quickly become a regular fixture in the festival and club circuit.

Growing up on the East Coast being heavily influenced by hip-hop, you'd be surprised that he is now a purveyor of a multitude of genres from big-room to progressive and bass-house. In fact, his diverse mash of styles and influences has undoubtedly shaped him into the unique artist and selector that he is today.

After a string of playing smaller, intimate venues, and even securing DJ residencies at local bars, Baumer finally had his big break when he was invited to play for a major club in Honolulu. This was a turning point for him as it now revealed his potential. Within a few years, he had already moved up to the big leagues and locked in his first set at the notorious Electric Daisy Carnival festival in Las Vegas. Since then, he has gone on to play other major festivals including EDC Orlando, Beyond Wonderland, and EDC Brazil.

In June of 2016, Baumer released two original tracks, 'Juump' and 'Taking the Night'. 'Juump' is an electro house track with a rock feel that is sure to be a dance floor hit. 'Taking the Night' is an uplifting progressive house track with vocals by up and coming artist Addie Nicole.
